NEIGHBORS

Ever think about who your neighbor is or what kind of neighbor you are. Most of us think our neighbor is the one who lives next door or the homes nearby to yours. At times we are good neighbors and sometimes we are not so good neighbors.

Let me share what I tell couples on their wedding day during the homily. I tell them that you're not only going to be husband and wife, but that you're going to be neighbors. Very close neighbors. I tell them to be good neighbors to each other as well as good spouses. I also explain to them that the people who witness their marriage ceremony are also your neighbors (family and friends). In reality, we are neighbors with everyone in the world.

God made us each with different personalities, to think on our own and because of this some don't seem to be very good neighbors. We see this throughout the world, people against people and country against country.

Most of us see this when one steals a parking place, cutting in front of the line, talking in the movie theater, road rage, taking someone's seat in the theater, Church, or any kind of social event. I could go on and on, but I think you get the point. Because we are all made different, we think differently, and some try to compromise, some pout and some live with it. Some people let it go and others don't. Some let it build up inside of them and get very angry. Some threaten to leave the establishment, and some try to make something good of the situation. As we grow up and go to work; there will be things we like and dislike. Some things can be changed, and some cannot. Remember, we all cannot have our way every single time. We, as a people should know better and must learn to compromise.

Sometimes it's very hard to be good neighbors. Like some of you, I find it hard at times also. When you read in the scriptures, St. Paul writing to Corinthians tells us how to live together as a community. If we can learn to live together as a community, we also can learn to live as good neighbors. We, as Catholics, should be examples to everyone.

Jesus also gave us a new commandment: "Love one another as I love you."

Now if we can live together as a community and love one another as Jesus loves us; what kind of neighbor do you want to try to be? Think and pray about it.

Looking for a New Experience?

Every weekday morning a Mass is celebrated at 8:00 am in the East Nave of our Church. The experience of this daily Mass is often different from the experience at a Sunday Mass. There are fewer persons attending, there is more quiet time before Mass, the Mass is usually less than a half an hour long, there is a shorter homily, there is more of a closeness between those attending the Mass, and there is a wonderful spiritual feeling that comes from the fact that you don't have to be there; you are doing something "extra" to show your love of Jesus. Why not take a chance to come to Mass once in a while on a weekday morning? You may see a change in the way you experience the Mass.

Answer to This Week's Religion Question

Congratulations to Kimora Wright and Carlee Koerner (grades 3A and 3B). These young ladies are the winners of the "2STRONG4BULLIES" contest that was sponsored by Channel 19 and the Becker Law Firm. They were 2 of the 25 winners after hundreds of artwork and essays were submitted. Their artwork depicted why bullying is unacceptable at St. Benedict School. These young ladies and their families will be honored at the station for the Channel 19 news that evening! We are so proud of their talent and recognition!

St. Benedict junior high teacher and Thoreau Bicentennial Ambassador, Donna Marie Przybojewski, is exhibiting her illustrations from her children's books on Henry David Thoreau — Henry David Thoreau, Who Can He Be?, Henry David Thoreau Loved the Seasons of the Year, and If Henry David Thoreau Traveled to the Southwest. They are a combination of water color, acrylic, colored pencil, and oil. Celebrate Henry's birthday year by eating a piece of birthday cake at the opening reception on Friday, June 1 from 5-9pm at Cleveland Heights Library Lee Road's Art Gallery! If you can't make the reception, worry not — Donna's show will remain up for the entire month of June.
